Feeding on the Word of God

The members of this congregation love to eat. We have great cooks among us, and when we gather for a fellowship meal, there is always plenty to choose from. No one should ever go away hungry. You might eat some of everything on the table, or if you are somewhat finicky like I am, you can pick and choose those foods that are most appealing to you. The wonderful thing about fellowships, pot-lucks, and smorgasbord restaurants is that the pickiest of eaters can find enough of the foods we enjoy.

Unfortunately, many in the world today treat the word of God as if it were a buffet. They focus solely on the passages that are appealing to them, but they'd rather not read or listen to anything that makes them uncomfortable, ashamed, or guilty. All who claim to be followers of Christ enjoy hearing about the love, grace, and mercy of God, but most are not interested in hearing of His wrath and punishment. Not all passages are meant to give us warm and fuzzy feelings, but all the scriptures are profitable for us. The Old Testament was written for our learning and example (continued next page)

(Rom. 15:4; 1 Cor. 10:1-11). All scriptures are given to make us wise unto salvation and are profitable to prepare us for a life of good works (2 Tim. 3:15ff).

We can turn up our noses to foods that don't appeal to our taste buds and still be physically healthy, but we cannot do that with the word of God if we expect to be spiritually healthy. We need to consume it all because it contains the spiritual nutrients we need – the whole counsel of God (Acts 20:27); everything pertaining to life and godliness (2 Pet. 1:3); and the words of life (John 6:68).
